Reed's emergency notification system is tested annually. This test is usually scheduled proximate to fall break, and the community will normally be given advanced notification via email. This email usually includes a link to the Annual Security Report, which contains information about emergency response and evacuation procedures. The emergency response team conducts campus exercises to include the activation of the emergency response center at least once per academic year. Community safety provides the time, date and description of the exercise, and whether it was announced. Residence life holds fire drills that include complete evacuation of each residence building a calendar year.

and remedies available to employee survivors. Other campus accommodations may be made on a case-by-case basis. Decisions about campus accommodations for employees are made by the Title IX coordinator in consultation with the dean of faculty, the director of human resources, or the director of community safety.

If the survivor and accused are employed on campus, the human resources office may work with supervisors to minimize the possibility that employment will put the parties in contact.

Community safety may be able to arrange for an escort to accompany a survivor across campus.

No-contact orders between two members of the Reed community may be requested from the dean of faculty, the director of human resources, or the director of community safety. No-contact orders are non-punitive and reciprocal.

Protective orders may be issued by courts for survivors of sexual assault, domestic violence, and stalking. Protective orders may require the respondent to stay away from specific places or to avoid certain types of contact. If the respondent violates the protective order, they may be subject to criminal penalty. Reed honors all court-issued protective orders.

Survivors of any crime who have reported to law enforcement may be eligible for some financial assistance from the Oregon Crime Victims' Compensation Program.

Title IX & DHSM investigations

Title IX is a federal law that protects the rights of all students to get an education and participate fully in campus activities by prohibiting discrimination and harassment based on gender. Each educational institution approves its own policy and procedure.
